This article is a Part II, as well as a "work in progress", of the more extensive '150 Years of Voting in a Managed Democracy: Same Elite Network Behind All Republican and Democrat Candidates; Power from Morgan to Rockefeller to Kissinger'. That article was focused on U.S. administrations and political candidates. This article is focused on Europe, and likely in the future also Canada and Australia. Both articles look at pre-existing direct and closely indirect Rockefeller and other elite ties (largely through Bilderberg, the Trilateral Commission, and other globalist-oriented NGOs) to administration members, as well as candidates for the prime ministership or presidency that did not make it.

The main idea is to look for elite ties when future heads of state still were "nobodies" or relative "nobodies", i.e. not already cabinet members. For example, Gunnar Thoroddsen being elected prime minister in 1980 while having visited Bilderberg in 1966 is not super-interesting, because this person already was a finance minister in 1959-1965. It's not insignificant - far from it - but maybe it also is not good enough to be listed. For the United States it has been quite easy to identify very or relatively early elite ties. For Europe, this appears to be more of challenge for the time being. There are just more countries, more languages, more universities, more (relevant) businesses, with only the tiniest fraction of old "conspiracy literature".

In the past this author identified a considerable amount of future heads of state from Bilderberg and (possibly) Trilateral Commission lists, both groups founded and (largely) ran by David Rockefeller. These notes have been lost for the time being. One day we might try again. In the mean time, added are all relevant names of the first 1993 Davos "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" class, which contained a staggering list of future heads of state.

For the sake of keeping things manageable, at this point we are not looking yet at appointed administration members, such as secretaries of state, defense, finance, etc., as was done in the U.S. article. For now, the focus is purely elected heads of state.

On this site the reader can find about 100 articles with a total of 1.7 million words, not counting (fully written-out) sources, press reports, membership lists with biographies, and outside work. If the information is reorganized a little, it would be possible to publish it in about twenty 300 page books.

TRILATERAL COMMISSION

a 1960s CIA MKULTRA subproject. "Conservative CIA" prime ministers and candidates as Thierry Baudet and Geert Wilders have not yet been addressed here. GreenLeft candidate Jesse Klaver, also in an alliance with the Labour Party (PvdA), for years had been a trustee at that point of the Bilderberg-dominated think tank Friends of Europe, under top globalist Etienne Davignon ³, the former honorary chair of Bilderberg.

Name	Government position
Ruud Lubbers	Economics minister 1973-1977. Prime minister Nov. 1982 to Aug. 1994. More work is needed on any earlier ties, but by May 1981 a founding patron of the pro-Europe think tank American European Community Association (AECA), together with key veteran Bilderbergers Henry Kissinger, George Ball, George McGhee and the Agnelli family. ⁴ The AECA was funded by tobacco group Philip Morris, which maintained a relationship with Lubbers, both directly and through the AECA. ⁵
Mark Rutte	Prime minister of the Netherlands 2010-2024. Graduate of Leiden University, where the elite Minerva Fraternity is situated, of which the Orange royal family have been generational members, and where multinationals as Shell and Unilever also do a lot of their recruiting. While Rutte was not a member of Minerva - considered " one of the foundations of our ruling elite " - various of his later cabinet members were. ⁶ Chair of the youth organization of the neoliberal-inclined VVD party 1988-1991. From 1992 to 2002 he held mid level management positions at the Dutch-British multinational Unilever, and its various subsidiaries. ⁷ Unilever is a founding Bilderberg firm through Paul Rijkens and always has been a key firm in financing the globalist movement. It also is part of Davos, for example. From 1993 to 1997 Rutte also sat on the national board of director of the VVD party. In that manner he worked under 1990-1998 VVD head Frits Bolkestein , a former Shell Oil manager and four-time Bilderberg visitor in 1996, 2002, 2003 and 2004, and listed in ISGP's " conservative CIA " article for his mentorship of other "conservative CIA" assets Joshua Livestro and Geert Wilders . When Rutte briefly entered congress in 2002, it actually was Geert Wilders who largely showed him the ropes. In 2006 Rutte became head of the VVD Party.

Only after becoming prime minister in 2010, did Rutte become directly involved in globalist think tanks. Considering this author hasn't found a single news outlet reporting on it, in November 2011 Rutte was part of a fully secret regional meeting of the Trilateral Commission at Palace Noordeinde, hosted by Queen Beatrix and her son, future King Willem Alexander. From there, Rutte went on to become a Bilderberg regular, visiting in 2012-2013, 2015-2016, and all meetings between 2018 and 2023.

Davos Rutte certainly visited in 2013 and from 2019 to 2023. He actually reported at least some of these visits on his official Twitter, giving us a good indication as to the difference in sensitivity between these organizations. Shell chairman and Bilderberg veteran Jeroen van den Veer, Unilever head Paul Polman, a known confidante of Rutte ⁸, who, as mentioned, used to be a manager at Unilever himself; Queen Maxima and Princess Mabel of Orange, the latter the long-time Soros ally, all visited Davos with Rutte in the 2013-2023 period. Looking at the 2023 participants list, Rutte took along almost his entire cabinet to Davos: the ministers of defense, finance, foreign trade and development, social affairs and employment, infrastructure and water, and two recently-retired secretaries of state. Noteworthy too is that all of these ministers were women, apart from one former secretary of state. While Shell and Unilever had their usual presence, flanking these ministers to Davos were not Van den Veer or Paul Polman for once, but certainly the heads of the three banks that together control over 80% of Dutch banking: ING, Rabobank and ABN AMRO; as well as McKinsey & Co., Heineken, and Randstad, the world's largest temporary ("temp") employment agency. Bilderberg co-chair Victor Halberstadt tagged along as well.

Needless to say, Rutte buried the Netherlands in Third World immigrants and skyrocketed house prices to unpayable levels. He did have a strong habit though to compromise with "the left", or "liberal CIA"-type parties on issues of socialism and environmentalism, making him a bit of full-spectrum globalist.

Rob Jetten	Minister of climate and energy under prime minister Mark Rutte 2022-. Head of the D66 party 2023-. Major prime ministerial candidate in the Netherlands in 2023. Vice premier 2024-. David Rockefeller fellow of the Trilateral Commission since at least 2021. ⁹ Massive pusher of Third World immigration, even more unrestrained than the neoliberal-inclined prime minister Mark Rutte. Gay.

Kurt Kiesinger	Leader CDU 1967-1971, chancellor of West-Germany 1966-1969. Bilderberg visitor in 1955, 1956, 1957, 1959 and 1960, alongside David Rockefeller.
Helmut Schmidt	Minister of defense Oct. 1969-1972, minister of economics and finance 1972-1974, chancellor of West Germany May 16, 1974-1982. Schmidt visited the U.S. for the first time in 1950, representing the bombed-out port of Hamburg at a Chicago trade fair. He met Henry Kissinger for the first time in 1957 or 1958, and was groomed by American elites from there on. As Schmidt himself explained in a 2007 article for the magazine of the Kissinger-co-founded American Academy in Berlin : "Henry Kissinger and I met for the first time ... at [or around] Harvard ... in

*1957 or 1958. ... Thanks to Henry Kissinger, Robert Bowie, and Paul Doty, I was introduced to outstanding American authorities and specialists like Bernard Brodie, Klaus Knorr, General Maxwell Taylor, Zbigniew Brzezinski, George Kennan, Paul Nitze and many others. ... When in the end of the 1960s I became Germany's defense secretary I was able to meet my colleagues in NATO with the same level of knowledge and judgment – thanks to the education I had received earlier from those Americans (and as well from a few British and French specialists)."*¹⁰

Visited Bilderberg for the first time in 1966, with David Rockefeller, Rockefeller mentor John McCloy, and Zbigniew Brzezinski also present. This is in between Schmidt being a senator in Hamburg and the head of the Social Democratic Party in the Bundestag from March 1967. Again visited Bilderberg in 1967 and 1969, also together with David Rockefeller. Months after the 1969 Bilderberg meeting, Schmidt became defense minister (1969-1972), followed the post of minister of finance (1972-1974). Anno 1972 Henry Kissinger, the son of Nelson Rockefeller, Rodman; various early neocons, and Helmut Schmidt were members of the (neo)conservative Hudson Institute, which, through its CFR founder, Herman Kahn, was represented at the first Davos conference in 1971.

In May 1973 Schmidt again visited Bilderberg, with Baron Edmond de Rothschild and Zbigniew Brzezinski present. Henry Kissinger was mostly serving as national security advisor and secretary of state at this time. Schmidt became chancellor on May 16, 1974, after his predecessor, Willy Brandt was forced to resign on May 7 after it was discovered that one of his key aides was an East German Stasi spy.

Visited the Bohemian Grove in 1982. Founding patron of the 1996-founded neocon New Atlantic Initiative alongside Henry Kissinger, George Shultz and Margaret Thatcher.

A second visit took place in 1973. This is one of the few meetings without David Rockefeller, but Zbigniew Brzezinski and Baron Edmond de Rothschild were among the participants that year. Marcus Wallenberg was present again as well. Palme visited Bilderberg a third time in 1984. David Rockefeller and Peter Wallenberg were among those present.
